

Picasso Would Be Proud

Judges: Tell teams this is a Hands-on problem

This is a three-part problem. In part one, you will have 3 minutes to come up with a non-verbal solution to the problem. In part two, you will assign a caption provided by the judges to the solution to the problem in part 1. In part three, you will have 3 minutes to respond to the solution and present this verbally to the judges.

Your problem is to use the materials supplied to create an individual work of art. This must be done non-verbally. At one-minute intervals announced by the judge, you will trade off your solution with one of your teammates. You will then add to the work of art that you now have in front of you.

At the end of part 1, time will be called. In part 2, you will have one minute to place one of the 8 captions next to the works of art created in part one. (They may talk now but don't tell them this) At the end of part two, each team member must take turns in sequence to respond creatively using the caption and the work of art by which to respond.

Score will be as follows

Teamwork in Part 1: 1-25 points

Creativity of the artwork: 1-15 points

Use of materials 1-50 points

Creativity in the responses in part three will get 1 point for a standard response, and 5 points for a creative response.

How well the team represented itself throughout the Spontaneous challenge 1-50 points.

Coaches:

Give the team various supplies for the artwork:

Marshmallows, macaroni, playing cards, pipe cleaners, clay, pencils, coins, tape, tooth picks etc...whatever is available

Use these for the captions or create your own:

What happened? , Sold, Baby, Upside down, Leftovers, Pet, A bad joke, When?, Where?, Why?, When I grow up, Ugliest, First place, Last place, Whatever, Lost and Found...

Have you been Spontaneous today?
